

before

after

The image shows the water heater installed in its final position. It is a white, rectangular unit mounted on a light-colored wall. To the left of the unit, a vertical metal pipe runs down the wall, with a white elbow fitting at the top. To the right of the unit, a white cabinet or door is visible. The water heater's control panel, featuring a digital display showing '10' and several buttons, is centered on the front. The overall appearance is clean and professional.